Unnecessary Trouble

[Under this very significant caption, the Christian Advocate and Journal phisosophizes thus very instructively!]

People endure a vast amount of unneces sary, unappointed trouble. If we had only the afflictions sent by God, or if we were con tent to bear only the evil of to-day and, were not constantly standing on tiptoe, looking out of the present into the future, espying its store of misery; and if we were not so energetic in packing into the experience of now, sor rows that belong to another date per-haps belong to the past, and which ought to be buried, or that belong to the future and ought to be compelled to bide their time, we should be far more happy, and should soon learn that a large part of the trouble of life is borne unnecessarily.

I. Young and elderly persons often fall vicims to a very simple mistake. and pain themselves greatly without good cause Both classes are apt to be vexed beccause their acquirements or tastes do not agree with their time of life. The sensitiveness of intelligent youth is hurt because, despite education and genius, there is that mortifying consciousness in company of imperfection, and of inability to do what with fewer onlookers and auditors could be easily done; but would not a little reflectian and knowledge of mankind save him from that trouble? It would undoubtedly comfort such persons to remember that, though education begins the gentleman subsequent reading of books and men, good company, observation of the world, are need to complete him; and that, so far from allowing the consciousness of imperfection to trouble and harrass him, he should regard it as natural experience, and be stimulated by it to diligence in the subsequent parts o his education for life. It the young would be content to be young, and to be treated as such, they would often suffer less than they

On the other hand, elderly people are of ten made to wince because their tastes are such as do rather become youth than age. Their desires are constantly fresh; they g about their pleasures and pursuits as if the were only beginning life; nay, some of their greatest vices do actually begin to live in their old age; and it is no wonder that they get pain and ridicule, who though old men act as if they were boys; but it is all trouble of their own wooing. Let elderly folks be content to be so; let them not chafe and grow testy if young people do not go into raptures when they join them, and if they often find incidents to remind them that they are not now as youthful as they were forty years ago. It may be that they have never yet felt old, or thought of themselves as other than comparatively youthful, ac quietly does time steal away, and so gently does he let men slide down hill; but other people see the grey hairs here and there un nown to their owner; and nobody will ever think of them now in connection with their yourn, except the few who still live that knew them in those days when the names of scarcely any of their playfellows and friends had gone to fill the register of death -names that for many years past have only been heard at long intervals.

In order, then, to avoid needless trouble, let young and old be satisfied with the tastes. pleasures, occupations, and position natural

II. We often trouble ourselves unnecessa rily in consequence of what we regard as our stupidity. Probably we are stupid often, and in many things; but still it does not follow that because we do not learn some things quickly, or perceive truths or appli ances as readily as our neighbors, we are lacking in intelligence; there are many branches of learning which men study for have not prepared to learn them; and before could appreciate their niceties I must have the points of the world in strong relief. admit clerical visitors readily, but will re you clearly apprehend that all this warfare fuse to allow some of their lay friends to ac means peace, and that a dastardly peace company them in their inspection of machinery; but why the distinction?
